Gurgaon – The Venue City

Gurgaon, located in the National Capital Region, is the most rapidly developing colonnade of greater Delhi. It lies close to the international and domestic airports. Also known as the millennium city, it has emerged as the hub of IT and other new age businesses. Its proximity to the national capital of Delhi is an added advantage. It enjoys all the facilities available in Delhi. Gurgaon is home to offices of several MNCs, and is well linked by rail and road to Delhi, Faridabad and Jaipur.

The origin of the city's name is steeped in Hindu mythology. Legend has it that Gurgaon is the ancestral village of Guru Dronacharya, the teacher of the Pandavas and Kauravas in the Indian epic, Mahabharata. In Sanskrit, Guru means teacher, which in this case refers to Dronacharya and Gram means village. According to Hindu mythology, the village was gifted by the Pandavas and Kauravas to Dronacharya, the son of Rishi Bhardwaj, and was, therefore, known as Gurugram. Over time, colloquial term gaon (which also means village in Prakrit) was substituted for gram and the name Gurgaon emerged.

In & Around Gurgaon

Gurgaon, also known as the Singapore of India, offers a variety of sightseeing options. It also offers a wide range of international shopping experience to the tourists. The theme based malls like the Gold Souk and the wedding mall are the one of it's kind in India. In addition to these, the city also attracts guests to sites like the Damdama Lake, Sultanpur Bird Sanctuary and the Surajkund arts and crafts festival.

Sultanpur Bird Sanctuary:

At a distance of 16 km from the town, this is a perfect haunt for passionate bird lovers. Founded by Dr. Salim Ali, it preserves over 100 species of birds, like saras, crane, spot bill, ruddy duck, and rosy pelicans.

Sheetla Devi Temple:

At one and a half kilometers, in the fringes of Gurgaon, this famous Hindu temple is also called 'Shakti Peeth'. Dedicated to Mata Sheetla Devi - the goddess of small-pox, it is visited by several people of all religions and beliefs.

Damdama Lake:

Positioned a few kilometers to the south of Gurgaon, off Alwar road, Damdama lake is an amazing tourist spot. The adventure resort at Water Banks offers deluxe tents along the lake.

Sohna:

The town is specially remarkable for its hot springs. In ancient times, it was a place of rishis and the main kund (tank) was called Shiv Kund. Famed for medicinal properties, these sulphur springs were visited by foreign tourists during the British period.

Neemrana Fort:

This Fort-Palace is among India's oldest heritage resorts. Neemrana became the third capital of the descendants of Prithviraj Chauhan III, who was killed in battle by Mohammad Ghori in 1192 AD.

Brahma Sarovar:

The holy town of Kurukshetra is made venerable by the presence of many holy temples and water tanks. The Brahma Sarovar is a sacred water tank that is revered as the cradle of civilization. Belief is, that Lord Brahma conceived the Earth here, in all it's diversity.
